About Society for Biotechnologists India (SBTI)

SBTI was established in 1995 with its headquarters in the Department of Biotechnology, Cochin University of Science and Technology, Cochin. The society is dedicated to the advancement of biotechnology, especially to unite scientists, students, academicians, doctors, industrialists and professionals. The society promotes the exchange of scientific information through workshops, conferences and publications in the emerging areas of biotechnology. The society has 18 Honorary members, 1,500 life members and around 2,000 ordinary members from various fields of biotechnology.

About the Conference

Ayurveda, the ancient Indian system of medicine, has been practiced for thousands of years and is based on holistic principles aimed at promoting health and preventing diseases. It encompasses a comprehensive understanding of the human body, medicinal herbs, dietary practices, lifestyle recommendations, and therapeutic techniques. Despite its longstanding history and proven efficacy, ayurveda has often faced skepticism from the scientific community due to the lack of rigorous scientific validation and standardization of its practices.

On the other hand, biomedical research has made significant strides in understanding diseases, developing new drugs, and advancing medical technologies. Biotechnological tools and techniques have revolutionized healthcare by enabling precise diagnosis, targeted therapies, and personalized medicine.

Recognizing the immense potential for synergy between ayurveda and biomedical research, there has been a growing interest in exploring the scientific basis of ayurvedic principles and integrating them with modern medical practices. This interest has led to the organization of national & international conferences focusing on biotechnological applications in ayurveda and biomedical research.
